Proper Citation: Pennsylvania State University Huck Institutes Automated Biological Calorimetry Core Facility (RRID:SCR_024458)

Description: Automated Biological Calorimetry Facility provides infrastructure and support for individual investigators to undertake studies of macromolecule binding and folding, as well as protein and lipid quantification. Our calorimetry instruments are fully automated and require the least amount of sample of any commercially available instruments. Provides instrumentation and collaborative assistance for Isothermal titration calorimetry for studying ligand-macromolecule binding; Differential scanning calorimetry for investigating stability and folding thermodynamics. Staff is available to assist with project development and research.
