Description: Pharmaceutical education began at Philadelphia College of Pharmacy (PCP), the first such institution in North America. With nearly two centuries of experience in pharmacy and science and thousands of alumni working in the healthcare industry, the world turns to PCP graduates for advice. From undergraduate majors to graduate degrees to our esteemed PharmD program, you can learn where the founders (alumni such as McNeil, Lilly, Rorer, Wyeth, Warner, Burroughs, and Wellcome) of six of the top pharmaceutical companies in the world got their education. Since 1821, they have been preparing professionals in pharmacy practice, science, and health care. There is no better place than PCP to prepare you for a lifelong career in the healthcare industry.
