Description: With a team of over 80 contributors, this award winning collaborative health and science blog covers topics from multidimensional biopsychosocial perspectives. We review the most impactful news and research related to neuroscience / neurology, psychology / psychiatry, and health / healthcare. Our blog serves as a beacon for attracting new minds beyond the basic sciences of brain and into the biopsychosocial model. Founded in 2005 by Dr. Shaheen Lakhan, Brain Blogger is an official undertaking of the Global Neuroscience Initiative Foundation (GNIF) an international charity for the advancement of neurological and mental health patient welfare, education, and research. Brain Blogger is one of the most effective mediums for the GNIF to raise awareness of neuro-related topics. We are a proud member of the 9rules Network and the Scientific American Partner Network a handful of selected blogs that share similar interests and readership. Also, our commitment to ethical biomedical journalism is exemplified by successfully undergoing annual voluntary certification by HONcode the oldest and the most used ethical and trustworthy code for medical and health related information available on internet. Moreover, we are a member of the Healthcare Blogger Code of Ethics. Under the editorship of Dr. Shaheen Lakhan, Brain Blogger hosts a team of over 80 contributors from diverse academic, professional, and social backgrounds: including neurosurgeons (Dr. McCleary), psychotherapists (Mr. Yourell), forensic psychologists (Dr. MacHovec), registered nurses (Mrs. Jones), clinical pharmacists (Dr. Gibson), patient advocates (Mrs. Wilson-Herndon), and general citizens concerned about neurological and mental health (Mr. McIntyre). To join our team, please follow the simple instructions to sign-up online.
