Description: Stroke Trials Registry is a continuously updated registry of randomized clinical trials in stroke and cerebrovascular disease. This project is a free public service from the Internet Stroke Center at Washington University School of Medicine; with support from the American Stroke Association and the National Institute of Neurological Disorders and Stroke. This registry will meet technical standards for inclusion in the International Clinical Trials Registry Platform of the World Health Organization. The information on this site is intended for health professionals. SPOTRIAS is an NIH-funded network of stroke research centers that perform early phase clinical projects, share data, and promote new approaches to therapy for acute stroke. clinical data, human, homo sapien, stroke, translational medicine
