Description: Repository of rejections of papers - letters and comments - that were ultimately accepted by a journal to educate others. Your rejection letters and comments are welcome. Some journals have begun including reviewers' comments with accepted papers to make the views of experts available to the reader. However, often the paper has been submitted to several journals and rejected before it is finally accepted. The rejection letters and comments are equally useful in helping to judge what kind of papers might be acceptable to a journal, and what kind of comments lead to rejections. Rather than hiding these low points in the trajectory of a scientific paper, this forum offers a place to publish these letters and comments to educate others.
