Description: Software tool as ggplot2 extension for alluvial plots. Used to visualize frequency distributions over time or frequency tables involving several categorical variables. Requires user to specify dimensions, either as separate aesthetics or as key-value pairs, relies on separate layers (stats and geoms) to produce strata, alluvia, and alluvial segments called lodes and flows.

Resource Type: data processing software, data visualization software, software application, software resource

Keywords: Alluvial plots extension, visualize frequency distributions over time, visualize frequency tables involving several categorical variables,
