Proper Citation: National Lacustrine Core Facility (RRID:SCR_002215)

Description: Archive of almost 20,000 meters of high quality sediment cores from large and small expeditions to lakes all around the world. LacCore advocates for, coordinates, and facilitates core-based research on Earth's continents through collaborative support for logistics, field and laboratory, and data and sample curation and dissemination. They provide a wide variety of fee-based analytical services, as well as offer training and instrument time to lab visitors. They also develop Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs) for local training and adoption by individuals at other labs.
